Graduate and Post-Graduate Level Courses Involving Wastes Management

A number of Universities and other establishments of higher education now have first-degrees and post-graduate level courses available involving various aspects of wastes management or environmental pollution control. These are normally full-time courses, but some are offered on a part-time modular basis. There is now a wide range of courses, ranging from those that contain just a module of wastes management to full-time masters degrees specialising in the subject. Brief details of some of these courses follow:-
